Steve Jobs & Bill Gates (by Dr. Byeong, President)

We know them already. Steve Jobs was an American businessman and the founder of personal computer APPLE. Bill Gate is also an American businessman and is software developer, and founder of Microsoft.

I have known of Steve Jobs as an Action-oriented person and Bill Gates as a Thinking-oriented. Steve jobs was tending to be impulsive but Bill Gates is kind of consideration style.

Is there anything wrong to these different approaches? No. I don't think so. But as we know, both characters we need when we are doing ministries. We need BOTH in the end.

Steve Jobs was changed his style slowly to thinking-oriented later, because he realized that only impulsive and aggressive were not enough to make it, also Bill Gates realized himself is too considerate to do anything, so he tried to changed to be action-oriented than killing times too much before take an action.

But luckily, both of two were successful in their areas and contributed to development of life for human beings.

What is this to you, students?

Are you Steve Jobs' style? or Bill Gates'? Whatever you are, no need to worry about your original style from the birth.

Definitely God gave you and you were blessed by your parents. But whatever who you are, we need to develop ourselves for more effective person. Without sharpening ourselves we can't be succeed, I mean we can't be maximize in God's mission, and that's why we need to study in the classrooms formally and also informally at outside. We need to pick up learning from both, formally and informally. So only Informal and non-formal learning from outside are not enough. I mean just to get experiences are something shortage, and you will find it soon why.
